

Job perspectives

Especially in the context of the energy turnaround, there is continuous demand for engineers with energy competences, capable of designing, planning and implementing efficient energy systems. Competent in the fields of energy supply, energy distribution and energy usage, graduates of our program are employed in construction, implementation and deployment of energy plants, system and operation optimization, and energy consulting.